The Association for Intelligent Information Management (AIIM) is dedicated to advancing the information management industry. Since 1944, AIIM has been at the forefront of revolutionizing how organizations leverage information with emerging technologies. AIIM fosters organizations managing information with a goal for artificial intelligence through future-focused and technology-driven certification, education, research, networking, solutions, and support. AIIM represents a global community of information leaders committed to driving better business outcomes through intelligent information management.

Here are some of our favorite milestones from AIIM's long, rich history. Become a part of AIIM's future by visiting WWW.AIIM.ORG.

About the Timeline
Most of the actions listed on the timeline are a collection of material from the University of Michigan. In December 1982, Dr. Vernon T. Tate donated a large collection of manuscripts and publications documenting the history of microphotography and his own career as a historian, archivist, librarian, and microfilm pioneer to the University of Michigan. The Power Collection for the Study of Scholarly Communication and Information Transfer in the Special Collections Library. The Power Collection is named in honor of Dr. Tate's long-time friend, Eugene B. Power, the founder of the micropublishing firm University Microfilms, Inc.
